Miss Kentucky takes home National Sweetheart, talent titles

"Corn...It's Worth Singing About" may become Chera-Lyn Cook's new motto.

Cook, 20, representing Kentucky, was crowned the 1997 National Sweetheart following Sunday evening finals of the National Sweetheart Pageant.

The pageant was part of weekend-long activities at the Hoopeston Jaycees National Sweetcorn Festival.

Cook won not only the crown but the talent competition with her rendition of "When A Man Loves A Woman."

The new National Sweetheart is a student at Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond, where she has a double major of psychology/sociology. Future plans include private practice, focusing on child therapy.

Miss Iowa, Tanya Pennock, was first runner up and
